CHARLOTTE - A large and energetic crowd of graduating seniors and their friends and families gathered at Charlotte Performing Arts Center on May 8 for the annual senior tea, hosted by the Charlotte Chapter of the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC).

Each year, this grand celebration features a program of music and inspirational presentations by some of the club programs and the fall.

The GFWC Women's Chorus shared several selections that entertained as well as providing meaningful lyrics for those moving towards the exciting transition that graduation brings. The crowd enjoyed listening to each of the seniors present as they stood to introduce their guests, reflecting various combinations of joy, humor, and pride.

For each of the past 40 years, GFWC-Charlotte has honored an outstanding senior with an Educational Booster Award. President Mary Ramenak revealed the 2009 recipient as Jon Bartolacci. Her parents, Joe and Diana accepted the award on her behalf. Since 2001 was in the middle of being an AP exam and had to miss the tea, Jon is an IBC member, an academic for basketball and soccer, a Special Olympics volunteer, a Sunday school teacher, and a business owner.

Linda Foster announced that the planned speaker had canceled just two days prior to the tea, but the crowd was delighted to discover that the replacement speaker was meeting "Tami Baker, the marketing director for Liquid Web, Inc. stepped in on short notice and viewed the audience with a dynamic, insightful, and thought-provoking presentation, called "What I Wish to Know (When) Was in High School".

Following the presentations, students and their guests enjoyed delicious refreshments served in the lobby by GFWC members. All in all, the event was a wonderful and well received by those in attendance.

- From the GFWC-Charlotte
